

Mysterious Lisa (by Luca Maxeiner)

My name is Dave. I'm 17 years old and I go to high school.
My grades are good and I don't need to learn for tests.
Everyday I go to school, practise and go home. My parents work the whole day and I think they don't really care about my life and me.
Normally I am alone at school, when we've got break I go to the library and read some books about science and technology.

My older sister joins the cheerleader group, she is the completely opposite to me. She has friends and everybody wants to go out with her on prom night. At school she doesn't talk to me and at home I have to do her homework. I often wish I could change myself.

In school everybody talks about Facebook and who has the most friends and the most pictures. I also have Facebook, but only two friends. My dad and my math teacher.

Once on a rainy afternoon when I came home from school, somebody wrote me. A girl named Lisa.
She asked me for help, because she was new at my high school and she didn't know anyone. We wrote the whole day, but next day in school she wasn't there. I could not wait to go home and look if she sends me a message again. And yes she did.

We wrote everyday and in this time I got more self-confidence than I ever had but I never saw her at school.
People in school started talking to me and they said hello. I couldn't believe it. My sister wanted me to come to a football match.
My life has totally changed.
It has changed because of Lisa, she showed me that I am real and that life can be great.
It has changed because of Lisa, anonymous Lisa.

Never saw her in school.
